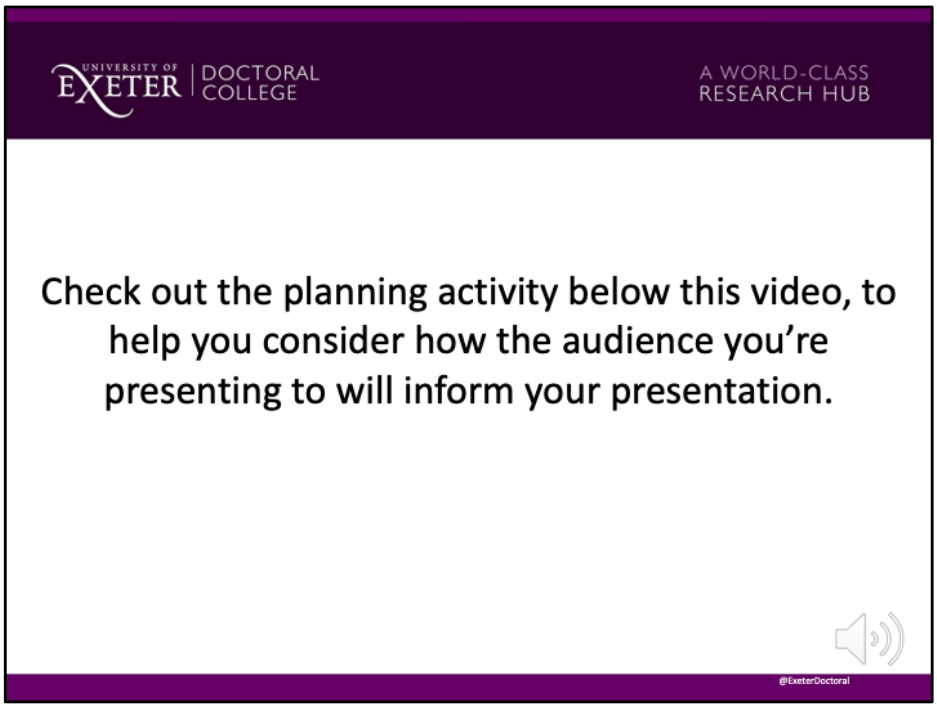
When planning and developing your presentation, you should consider who your audience is.

Who you audience are should impact the planning and writing of your presentation. For instance – certain terms may not need to be explained/defined for subject specialists, but will need to be for an interdisciplinary audience.



Check out the planning activity below this video, to help you consider how the audience you're presenting to will inform your presentation.